AUSTRIA AND ROME.

The full test of the Baron de Boun's despace in reply to the Papal Allocution more than confirms the report that Austria had given His Holiness to understand that he need not mediate in her sitisful. The Emperor's Missiser protests that the largestage of the allocution, in regard to the Imperial Government and the new turbitations of Austr's, is unjustifiably barsh, being such as might have been employed against appliers and oppressors of the Church, whereas the Oatholic religion, nowhere in Europe enjoys so many, privileges synthis moment as within the deminions of Francis Joseph. The reprimand of Pius IX, however meant, has had the unfortunate effect of deeply wounding the feelings of the Austrian people, and of damaging the interests of the Catholic Church in the empire. It is not possible to permit the condemnation by Rome of the principles of the new legislation, adopted idrough a happy agreement between the people and the Emperor's than one Catholic country without rebute than one Catholic country without rebute.
